The Communication Studies Program

The Communication Studies Program is a liberal arts major emphasizing theory and practice in a variety of settings for human and mediated communication. Topics include: communication campaigns, leadership, group problem solving, interpersonal skills, mass media effects, film and television production, documentary, radio production, social aspects of the media, political persuasion, organizational behavior, and the First Amendment. Some courses emphasize specific skills; others provide critical and conceptual frames for assessing a wide variety of messages.

Students enrolled in the Communication Studies Program may select from three content areas: Corporate/Organizational Communication, Public/Mass Communication, and Radio/Television.

Students in the Department of Communication Studies will develop communication knowledge and skills needed in a rapidly changing society. They will learn how communication affects individuals, groups, and society.

The flexible program is tailored to accommodate individual interests, aptitudes, and career goals. Each student works with a faculty adviser to plan a program of study and must complete a select group of required core courses which introduce basic concepts and skills. A variety of optional courses allows for the pursuit of more specialized areas. Students are encouraged to develop their creative talents and to apply classroom learning through participation in co-curricular activities, internships, and conference presentations.

Graduates from the Department of Communication Studies are strong candidates for positions in a variety of areas including administration, fundraising, public relations, human resources, advertising, sales, market research, media production and design, public affairs, and journalism. Students considering graduate school should take courses beyond the minimum requirement of 39 hours.

The communication program requires a minimum of 39 course credits:

Program Entrance, Retention, and Exit Standards

Every major program at the College has set standards for allowing students to remain in that program, to transfer within the College from one program to another, and to graduate from a program. The following are the standards for Communication Studies:

- Retention in the program is based on the following performance standards in these “critical content courses” (grade of C or better):

  For Corporate/Organizational and Public/Mass Communication: COMM 172/Survey of Media Communication; COMM 242/Interpersonal Communication

  For Radio/Television: COMM 172/Survey of Media Communication; COMM 212/Introduction to Television Production; COMM 269/Introduction to Radio and Audio Production

- Transfer in the program from another program within The College is based upon the following performance standards in these “foundation courses” (grade of C or better):

  For Corporate/Organizational and Public/Mass Communication: COMM 103/Introduction to Communication

  For Radio/Television: COMM 103/Introduction to Communication

- Graduation requires a GPA of 2.0 in all courses taken in the program.

Note: Because space in the Communication Studies Program is limited to available resources, students transferring into the program as well as lower division majors and minors may not be able to find space in selected courses.
