International Studies
Faculty: Sullivan, Director; Ball, Compte, Gross, Harris, Landreau, Leven, Lowi, Quinton, Samanta, Sanyal, Winston

International Studies is an interdisciplinary major that educates students to appreciate the social, cultural, political, and economic characteristics of national, regional, and global communities. It is based on the conviction that historically informed and politically aware students with knowledge of a language other than their own will think more critically and act more responsibly in a shrinking world.

Students who successfully complete this major may opt for further study in graduate or professional school, or may pursue careers in government service, in private enterprise, in international governmental and non-governmental organizations, in non-profit education, research and advocacy organizations, and in teaching.

Requirements for the Major
International studies majors take nine semester hours each in economics, history, international business, modern languages, and political science. Six of the nine semester hours in History and Political Science must be at the 300 level or above, and all nine semester hours of language study must be at the intermediate level. This language requirement is in addition to the general education’s requirement for 1–3 language courses, depending on competence. Also, when meeting their general education requirements, International Studies majors must enroll in: Statistics 115 or 215; Principles of Economics 200/Microeconomics; POL 230/International Relations; and a history course with an international focus.

Each student will select a major concentration from among four geographic areas: Europe, Latin America, the Middle East, and East Asia, and two functional subjects: diplomacy, and international economics and trade. Study abroad is required, and students are also encouraged to pursue an internship with an international focus. A senior thesis, written under the direction of a faculty adviser and in conjunction with the student’s concentration, completes the program.

Program Entrance, Retention, and Exit Standards

Every major program at the College has set standards for allowing students to remain in that program, to transfer within the College from one program to another, and to graduate from a program. The following are the standards for International Studies:

• Retention in the program is based on the following performance standards in these “critical content courses”: a grade of B– in 103 or 106 language course taken.
• Transfer into the program from another program within the College is based upon the following performance standards in these “foundation courses”: a grade of B in the first 100-level language course taken.
• Graduation requires a GPA of 2.0 in courses for the program and earning a minimum grade of B– in the following courses: the 103 or 106 language course taken.
General Information
Prerequisites for all courses except special courses and field experiences may be waived by permission of the instructor.

Suggested Course Sequence
International Studies Major INTS
During academic year 2003-2004, The College of New Jersey is in the process of transformative curricular change. Therefore only the course of study for first-year students entering in 2003-2004 is set out below. These students should consult their advisors when planning courses for future years. Supplements to this online bulletin also will be available on an ongoing basis.

International Studies Courses
INTS 291/391/Selected Topics in International Studies 3 cr.
(occasionally)
Current or specialized topics. May be taken for credit more than once if content differs.

INTS 300 Human Rights in International Relations 3 cr.
(annually)
This course examines the evolution of human rights movements since World War II and their influence on the behavior of nation states and other transnational actors. The major topics that will be discussed included: the history of the contemporary human rights movement, realism and liberalism in international relations theory, human rights in American foreign policy, and the role of non-state actors such as intergovernmental institutions, multinational corporations, and non-governmental organizations in international affairs. Significant attention may also be given to non-U.S. perspectives, selected regional issues, and current topics such as: women’s rights, terrorism, self-determination, globalization, forced labor, democratization, and humanitarian intervention.

INTS 395/Tutorial in International Studies 3 cr.
(occasionally)
Intensive study under close faculty supervision of a particular problem or topic in international studies. Requirements include intensive reading by the student and both oral and written reports. Emphasis is on the development of the student’s depth of knowledge and understanding of scholarly issues through a close professional relationship between tutor and student.

INTS 397/Internship in International Studies 3–6 cr.
(every semester)
Prerequisite: Completion of internship proposal and approval of faculty supervisor
Supervised field experience in a public or private organization with an international focus; readings and an analytic paper place the experience in scholarly perspective. May be repeated for credit; no more than six credits may be counted toward the major.

INTS 398/Independent Study in International Studies variable cr.
(every semester)
Prerequisite: Student proposal must be approved prior to registration by faculty member supervising the project
Independent reading or research pursued under supervision of a faculty adviser.

INTS 495 Thesis in International Studies 3–6 cr.
(every semester)
Prerequisite: Student proposal must be approved prior to registration by faculty member supervising the thesis.
This course serves as the capstone for the major. Students will design and complete an original paper of substantial length under the direction of a faculty adviser.

INTS 498 Senior Seminar in International Studies 3 cr.
(occasionally)
Advanced study through individual research and formal seminar reports on broad topics in International Studies. May serve as an alternate to the thesis as capstone requirement.
