

School of Art, Media, and Music

Dean: James Lentini; Assistant Dean for Student Services: Christine S. Leichter

The School of Art, Media, and Music is composed of two long-standing departments, Art and Music, and a new program area in Interactive Multimedia. The Department of Art offers the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Fine Arts and Graphic Design and the Bachelor of Arts degree in Art Education and Art History. Students can minor in art history and explore concentrations in art therapy, digital arts, illustration, and photography. The Department of Music offers the Bachelor of Music degree in Music Performance and in Music Education. The Interactive Multimedia major offers an innovative program, one of the first undergraduate majors in this emerging discipline, leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree in Interactive Multimedia, with specializations in Interactive Computing, Digital Media, and Professional Writing. In each department and program area, students develop their skills and knowledge within the rich context of the liberal arts. Graduates are prepared for professional-level employment or to pursue graduate studies. As an interdisciplinary program, Interactive Multimedia prepares students to analyze and create digital media. This innovative program, one of the first undergraduate programs in this emerging discipline, will enable students and faculty to participate in industry, government communities and the academy both nationally and internationally, and will engage students in concentrations such as Interactive Computing, Digital Media, and Professional Writing.
